A Big THANK YOU!!!

The Kansas PTA Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) would like to thank all of the 2013 Kansas PTA Convention attendees for their generous donations of birthday items in support of our community service project. This year’s service project will benefit Birthday Blessings KC, a Not For Profit organization that provides birthday parties to children who's parents cannot afford to provide them one. We are so proud of everyone's efforts and know that many children will now have the opportunity to celebrate and feel special on their special day.

Kansas PTA Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) members were pleased to be able to present the birthday items collected at the 99th Annual Kansas PTA Convention, to Kelly Chambers, Founder of Birthday Blessings KC. What you meant to me….

Tips for writing to your child.

This simple practice will help build a legacy of affirmation that your child can look back on years from now… not to mention grandchildren, great-grandchildren and descendants that you may never see.

Especially if you spend some time separated from your child, what you write to him or her can be the lifeblood of your relationship. Don’t miss this opportunity to build a stronger bond with your son or daughter!

Writing positive words allow your child to really savor each word, and come back later or keep it nearby as a reminder for later.

Just sit down and write what’s on your heart. It doesn’t have to be eloquent or even perfect grammatically. Be simple and clear.
Be funny, creative, challenging, and affirming.
Mention specific things you see that made you think of him.
Write about your commitment to your child – you’re always there for her, she can contact you any time, about anything, etc.
Be willing to acknowledge your mistakes, shortcomings or regrets as a dad.
Write with pen and paper. (Don’t worry if you have lousy handwriting; your child will appreciate seeing your unique scrawl.)
Affirm specific character qualities you’ve noticed in your child.
Describe the pride you feel during significant events or seeing your child’s accomplishments
Include your thoughts about what is most important in life, what you’ve learned, insights about relationships, stories about key events in your life, the best advice you’ve heard, what you would do differently, etc.
Look to the future and encourage your child toward greatness in whatever he or she pursues.

A simple letter from you can have more impact on your child than you ever dreamed.

“Families are big, small, extended, nuclear, and multi-generational, with one parent, two parents, and grandparents. We live under one roof, or many. A family can be as temporary as a few weeks, or as permanent as forever. We become a part of a family by birth, adoption, marriage, or from a desire for mutual support….. A family is a cultural unto itself, with different values and unique ways of realizing its dreams; together our families become the source of rich cultural heritage and spiritual diversity… Our families create neighborhoods, communities, states, and nations”.

Changing the Culture of Fathering in America

Call to Action

The Problem: There’s a crisis in America. Nearly 33% of all children live apart from their fathers, and when fathers are absent, children pay the price. Father-absence is linked to higher rates of poverty, failure in school, teen pregnancy, substance abuse, violent crime, depression, and ultimately a loss of hope. Your children are growing up in that culture, and they’re being affected – even if you’re an involved dad! If our culture continues on its current path, things will likely be much worse in all these areas for our grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

The Solution: A movement for change on behalf of today’s children and coming generation. At the National Center for Fathering, we want to help create a culture of Championship Fathering by enlisting dads to make a commitment to be the father their kids need. Our goal is 6 ½ million dads – 10% of the fathers in America – enough to stretch shoulder-to-shoulder from San Diego to Boston. We are recruiting, engaging and equipping dads to live out a commitment to Championship Fathering: Loving, Coaching, and Modeling for our own children, Encouraging an unfathered child and Enlisting other dads to do the same.

You can be part of the solution!

Take the SCARY out of Advocacy!
Brian Hogsett Kansas PTA Legislative Chair

What does Advocacy mean? There is a lot of power in the word Advocacy. In the context of PTA, advocacy is “supporting and speaking up for children - in schools, in communities, and before governing bodies and other organizations that make decisions affecting children.” Another definition shared during an advocacy workshop at this year’s National PTA convention, “to make every child’s potential a reality by engaging and empowering families and communities to advocate for all children.” Both of these definitions are extremely significant.

But wait...
- "I don't have time for advocacy."
- "I don't know enough about the issues."
- "The laws are too complicated for me to understand."
- "They have already made up their mind, there’s nothing I can do to make a difference."

Have any of these thoughts crossed your mind? If so, you are not alone. With so many things going on in today’s environment, it can easily become overwhelming. Did you know that more than likely, you are already an engaged and active advocate?
- talked with a school teacher about a concern regarding a child
- visited with the principal to present an idea that would benefit the school
- helped others register to vote
- talked to a superintendent or school board member(s) about a district-wide issue
- asked a question about school finance

Successful advocacy begins with an idea, question, or concern, and works best when a well-organized plan is executed. There are many different levels of advocacy. From the federal government, state government, county, city, school district, and school levels all the way to the classroom. All of which need careful attention and connections to make a difference.

Did your child attend kindergarten or have a hot and healthy lunch at school? If yes, thank advocacy!

What does advocacy mean for you? What is your idea, question, or concern?

Learn how you can make an even bigger difference in the success of Kansas children.

Kansas PTA will be hosting a Legislative Training Workshop this fall. Who should attend?

- PTA Presidents
- Legislative Chairs
- Teachers
- Administrators
- Law Makers
- Students
- Anyone that wants to know how to make an impact by inspiring a positive change for kids!

The date and location will be announced very soon. Stay tuned for details!
Advocacy: Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA)
Now is the time!

By Karen Wagner, KS PTA Vice President of Advocacy

From National PTA, PTA members have long been advocating for a comprehensive reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act-No Child Left Behind (ESEA-NCLB). We strongly believe that reauthorization of ESEA-NCLB presents the opportunity for thoughtful, bipartisan action to address needed changes to the law governing the federal role in general K-12 public education. PTA’s top priorities for ESEA-NCLB include:

* Adequate authorization levels to support critically important programs.
* Providing access to well-rounded education curricula for all students.
* Safeguarding and improving equity protections and dedicated funding streams for disadvantaged populations.
* Developing ambitious, yet appropriate, state-driven accountability systems with growth and performance goals to replace Adequate Yearly Progress.
* Guaranteeing that all students receive quality instruction from well-prepared teachers and pupil support personnel.

Currently there are three bills in congress to address the reauthorization of the ESEA. One bill, The Student Success Act (H.R. 5), passed the House of Representatives on July 19, 2013. Currently representatives are back in their districts we ask that you contact your representatives and stress the importance of our priorities.

National PTA’s 2013 Public Policy Agenda:

- Family Engagement
- Special Education
- Early Childhood Education
- Education Funding
- Childhood Health and Nutrition
- Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention
- School Safety

I encourage you to enroll in National PTA’s advocacy network and begin receiving updates today!

Upon notification, you will receive:
- a Celebrate Excellence Kit to help your school and PTA promote this recognition to your community (includes template tools to support media outreach, event planning, and ongoing communications strategies)
- a National PTA School of Excellence banner to hang prominently at your school. This designation will help attract new, action-oriented PTA members who want to focus on the issues that affect our children the most.

Your PTA and school will gain national and statewide recognition as a National PTA School of Excellence. On top of that, your PTA will be considered automatically for the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Award. This is National PTA’s highest honor recognizing effective family engagement strategies and includes a $2,000 grant.

The Necessity of Youth Voice
By: Keil Eggers
Founder, KCYV

Throughout their adolescent years (ages 12-18), youth are told time and time again, implicitly and explicitly, that they “are not ready” to make important decisions or contribute fully to their community until their eighteenth birthday. The signals that youth receive from society engender a sense of disenfranchisement and powerlessness; few outlets exist for the natural creativity and energy of youth. For example, politicians make many important decisions that affect youth via educational policy, but youth cannot vote until they are eighteen. This deficit of youth voice, defined by the National Service-Learning Clearinghouse as “refer[ing] to the ideas, opinions, involvement, and initiatives leadership of young people,” is slowly being reduced due to the efforts of a variety of innovative individuals and groups nationwide. For example, the National Service-Learning Clearing House, the FreeChild Project, 4-H, and local/state-wide groups like the Kansas Consortium for Youth Voice support an increase in youth voice by providing resources, training, or the platform for youth self-management.

Although youth voice practice has gained much traction for increasing youth engagement in educational and afterschool settings, the changes it causes in the mindset and attitude of youth is arguably more important. An environment where adults work with youth rather than for youth creates a space for youth to learn the skills vital to democracy and to being a member of their community. Raising youth voice and treating youth as equal partners is critical to positive youth development, empowerment, and healthy youth-adult relationships. Youth are ready, but are you ready to give them the necessary opportunities?

Below are three easy ways to increase youth voice. If you have any questions or would like to know more about the Kansas Consortium for Youth Voice and its mission, please contact us!

Evaluate your program’s level of youth voice. Is youth involvement lacking? Is it tokenism, consultation, or representation? (Refer to Hart’s Ladder: http://ksyouthvoice.org/general/harts-ladder/) Brainstorm how you could move up the ladder.
Ask: “Where are youth taking initiative and showing leadership within my program?” Find these bright spots and expand opportunities to underrepresented youth.
Be honest with yourself and with whom you work. Part of building youth-adult relationships is offering honest feedback and raising awareness.
